

Hitz FM hooks singles up

Ghanaian men they say are not romantic. Really?

Well Hitz FM offered the glorious opportunity for that long debate to be settled, in its Valentine hook up party organised at the Ramada Beach Resort on Saturday and the answer was all too glaring.

Four strong handsome men were presented with the greatest offer they could imagine - a night out with the sleek and gorgeous Amanda Jisseh host of Night vibes on Hitz, and all they were expected to do was to woo her.

One after the other the gentlemen had their legs wobbling, their mouths tottering all in a vain attempt to win the prize at stake.

Their pick up lines were all but gone, and at times it rather appeared as though it was the woman who was doing the wooing.

At last, William, with his bare broad chest, clad only in his boxer shorts and right from the swimming pool, sat in the saddle and at least salvaged the image, if any, of his other colleague men.

He won the prize.

Fun unlimited

The Ramada Beach Resort, the then Coco Beach resort had a good number of patrons who were ready to hook up and to have fun.

The singles were all white, and the couples were in the traditional valentine shudder - red - as they all had their faces beaming with smiles.

The occasion was also graced by young and upcoming talents like Macho rapper, Stone Boy and a few others who kept the crowd singing and dancing.

DJ Perfekt, was spot on with his hitz and got the patrons especially the ladies dancing and wiggling their &lsquo;behind&rsquo; of different sizes, shapes much to the admiration of the guys.

Joshua, however defied all odds and beat the ladies to the dancing competition which had a monetary reward at stake.

Akyeame Quofi, Kaninja and Afi moderated the show to perfection, and spiced it with lots of jokes.
